

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

DIANA ISEMINGER,

No. 1:15-CV-03088-JTR

Plaintiff,

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

CAROLYN W. COLVIN,
Commissioner of Social Security,

Defendant.

BEFORE THE COURT are cross-Motions for Summary Judgment. ECF No. 15, 18. Attorney D. James Tree represents Diana Iseminger (Plaintiff); Special Assistant United States Attorney Daphne Banay represents the Commissioner of Social Security (Defendant). The parties have consented to proceed before a magistrate judge. ECF No. 6. After reviewing the administrative record and briefs filed by the parties, the Court GRANTS Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment and DENIES Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment.

JURISDICTION

Plaintiff filed an application for Disability Insurance Benefits (DIB)¹ on ¹The record also contains an Application for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) Benefits filed on the same date as the DIB application. Tr. 139-144. The

1 November 16, 2011, alleging disability since April 5, 2011, due to spinal disorders, 2 chronic pain, herniated disc, multi-sited pain, left hip bursitis, fibromyalgia, 3 irritable bowel syndrome (IBS), chronic fatigue syndrome, S1 joint dysfunction, 4 and piriformis syndrome. Tr. 145-151, 192. The application was denied initially 5 and upon reconsideration. Tr. 90-96, 98-102. Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) 6 Gordon W. Griggs held a hearing on April 15, 2013. Tr. 32-66. At this hearing, 7 Plaintiff, represented by counsel, and vocational expert, Trevor Duncan, testified.
8 Id. The ALJ issued an unfavorable decision on October 23, 2013. Tr. 11-26. The 9 Appeals Council denied review on April 1, 2015. Tr. 1-6. The ALJ's October 23, 10 2013, decision became the final decision of the Commissioner, which is appealable 11 to the district court pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). Plaintiff filed this action for 12 judicial review on May 29, 2015. ECF No. 1, 4.

13 STATEMENT OF FACTS

14 The facts of the case are set forth in the administrative hearing transcript, the 15 ALJ's decision, and the briefs of the parties. They are only briefly summarized 16 here.

17 Plaintiff was 50 years old at the alleged date of onset. Tr. 145. Plaintiff 18 completed two years of college in 1994. Tr. 193. Plaintiff has worked as a 19 medical receptionist and a medical transcriptionist. Tr. 194. Plaintiff reported she 20 stopped working on April 5, 2011, because of her condition. Tr. 192.

21 STANDARD OF REVIEW

22 The ALJ is responsible for determining credibility, resolving conflicts in 23

24 record contains no reference to this application being approved or denied. Neither 25 Plaintiff's Complaint nor Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment asserts that a 26 SSI claim is pending. ECF No. 3, 15. Nonetheless, the Court's jurisdiction is 27 limited to the DIB claim as that is the only claim in which the record demonstrates 28 that Plaintiff has exhausted her administrative remedies. 42 U.S.C. § 405(g).

1 medical testimony, and resolving ambiguities. Andrews v. Shalala, 53 F.3d 1035, 2 1039 (9th Cir. 1995). The Court reviews the ALJ's determinations of law de novo, 3 deferring to a reasonable interpretation of the statutes. McNatt v. Apfel, 201 F.3d 4 1084, 1087 (9th Cir. 2000). The decision of the ALJ may be reversed only if it is 5 not supported by substantial evidence or if it is based on legal error. Tackett v.
6 Apfel, 180 F.3d 1094, 1097 (9th Cir. 1999). Substantial evidence is defined as 7 being more than a mere scintilla, but less than a preponderance. Id. at 1098. Put 8 another way, substantial evidence is such relevant evidence as a reasonable mind 9 might accept as adequate to support a conclusion. Richardson v. Perales, 402 10 U.S. 389, 401 (1971). If the evidence is susceptible to more than one rational 11 interpretation, the court may not substitute its judgment for that of the ALJ.
12 Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1097. Nevertheless, a decision supported by substantial 13 evidence will be set aside if the proper legal standards were not applied in 14 weighing the evidence and making the decision. Brawner v. Secretary of Health 15 and Human Services, 839 F.2d 432, 433 (9th Cir. 1988). If substantial evidence 16 supports the administrative findings, or if conflicting evidence supports a finding 17 of either disability or non-disability, the ALJ's determination is conclusive.
18 Sprague v. Bowen, 812 F.2d 1226, 1229-1230 (9th Cir. 1987).

19 SEQUENTIAL EVALUATION PROCESS

20 The Commissioner has established a five-step sequential evaluation process 21 for determining whether a person is disabled. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1520(a); see Bowen 22 v. Yuckert, 482 U.S. 137, 140-142 (1987). In steps one through four, the burden of 23 proof rests upon the claimant to establish a prima facie case of entitlement to 24 disability benefits. Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1098-1099. This burden is met once the 25 claimant establishes that physical or mental impairments prevent her from 26 engaging in her previous occupations. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1520(a)(4). If a claimant 27 cannot do her past relevant work, the ALJ proceeds to step five, and the burden 28 shifts to the Commissioner to show that (1) the claimant can make an adjustment to 1 other work, and (2) specific jobs exist in the national economy which the claimant 2 can perform. Batson v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 359 F.3d 1190, 1193-1194 3 (9th Cir. 2004). If the claimant cannot make an adjustment to other work in the 4 national economy, a finding of "disabled" is made. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1520(a)(4)(v).

ADMINISTRATIVE DECISION

6 On October 23, 2013, the ALJ issued a decision finding Plaintiff was not 7 disabled as defined in the Social Security Act.

8 At step one, the ALJ found Plaintiff had not engaged in substantial gainful 9 activity since April 5, 2011, the alleged date of onset. Tr. 13.

10 At step two, the ALJ determined Plaintiff had the following severe 11 impairments: degenerative disk disease of the lumbar spine, left hip bursitis, 12 obesity, chronic pain syndrome, depressive disorder not otherwise specified, 13 marijuana abuse, and prescribed opiate dependence. Tr. 13.

14 At step three, the ALJ found Plaintiff did not have an impairment or 15 combination of impairments that met or medically equaled the severity of one of 16 the listed impairments. Tr. 15.

17 At step four, the ALJ assessed Plaintiff's residual function capacity as 18 follows:

19 I find that the claimant has the residual functional capacity to lift and 20 carry twenty pounds occasionally and ten pounds frequently; to stand 21 and/or walk two hours in an eight-hour workday; and to sit for at least 22 six hours in this same period. She can never climb ladders, rope, or 23 scaffolding. She can occasionally stoop and climb ramps or stairs.
 24 She should avoid concentrated exposure to vibration, extreme cold, 25 and workplace hazards (such as proximity to unprotected heights and 26 moving machinery). Due to the effects of her pain symptoms, her 27 substance use, and her other psychological impairments, the claimant 28 is limited to performing tasks that can be learned in six months or less.

Tr. 17. The ALJ found that Plaintiff's past relevant work included the occupations of medical receptionist and medical transcriptionist. Tr. 24. The ALJ found that Plaintiff was able to perform her past relevant work as a medical receptionist. Tr.
 Tr. 24-25.

In the alternative to a step four determination, the ALJ made a step five determination. Tr. 25. Considering Plaintiff's age, education, work experience and RFC, and based on the testimony of the vocational expert, the ALJ found that Plaintiff acquired skills as a medical transcriptionist that could transfer to work as a data entry clerk. Id. Thus, the ALJ concluded Plaintiff was not under a disability within the meaning of the Social Security Act at any time from April 5, 2011, the alleged date of onset, through October 23, 2013, the date of the ALJ's decision. Tr. 26.

ISSUES

The question presented is whether substantial evidence supports the ALJ's decision denying benefits and, if so, whether that decision is based on proper legal standards. Plaintiff contends the ALJ erred by (1) failing to properly consider Plaintiff's testimony about the severity of her symptoms; (2) failing to find Plaintiff's fibromyalgia and piriformis syndrome severe at step two; (3) failing to accord proper weight to the opinions of Ronald Vincent, M.D., Paul Schneider, Ph.D., Michelle Beardemphl, MPT, and Robert Kelley, D.C.; (4) failing to properly determine Plaintiff's past relevant work; and (5) failing to properly consider transferable skills at step five.

DISCUSSION

A. Credibility

Plaintiff contests the ALJ's adverse credibility determination in this case. ECF No. 15 at 8-19.

It is generally the province of the ALJ to make credibility determinations, Andrews, 53 F.3d at 1039, but the ALJ’s findings must be supported by specific cogent reasons, Rashad v. Sullivan, 903 F.2d 1229, 1231 (9th Cir. 1990). Absent affirmative evidence of malingering, the ALJ’s reasons for rejecting the claimant’s testimony must be “specific, clear and convincing.” Smolen v. Chater, 80 F.3d 1273, 1281 (9th Cir. 1996); Lester v. Chater, 81 F.3d 821, 834 (9th Cir. 1995).

1 “General findings are insufficient: rather the ALJ must identify what testimony is 2 not credible and what evidence undermines the claimant’s complaints.” Lester, 81 3 F.3d at 834.

4 The ALJ found Plaintiff not fully credible concerning the intensity, 5 persistence, and limiting effects of her symptoms. Tr. 18. The ALJ reasoned that 6 Plaintiff was less than credible because (1) her symptom reporting was contrary to 7 the medical evidence; (2) she made inconsistent statements regarding her use of 8 controlled substances; and (3) her alleged symptoms were inconsistent with her 9 reported daily activities.

10 1. Contrary to the objective medical evidence

11 The ALJ’s first reason for finding Plaintiff less than credible, that Plaintiff’s 12 symptoms were not supported by objective medical evidence, is a specific, clear, 13 and convincing reason to undermine Plaintiff’s credibility.

14 Although it cannot serve as the sole ground for rejecting a claimant’s 15 credibility, objective medical evidence is a “relevant factor in determining the 16 severity of the claimant’s pain and its disabling effects.” Rollins v. Massanari, 261 17 F.3d 853, 857 (9th Cir. 2001).

18 In his decision, the ALJ found Plaintiff’s back impairment appeared to have 19 been unchanged and possibly improved since her period of gainful employment.
20 Tr. 18. This was inconsistent with her testimony that the impairment interfered 21 with her abilities to sit, stand, or work. Id. The ALJ supported his determination 22 by comparing Plaintiff’s 2007 MRI of the lumbar spine to her 2011 MRI of the 23 lumbar spine. Id. The 2007 MRI showed a mild facet arthropathy at L3-4, L4-5, 24 and L5-S1, and a small right post lateral disc bulge and annular tear at L5-S1. Tr.
25 511. The 2011 MRI showed no significant stenosis or herniation at L3-4, arthritic 26 changes at L4-5 and L5-S1 and a small central disc protrusion at L5-S1. Tr. 510.
27 Plaintiff argues that the 2011 MRI demonstrates a worsening of the back 28 impairment. ECF No. 15 at 11. The ALJ found it showed an improvement in the 1 impairment. Tr. 18. If the evidence is susceptible to more than one rational 2 interpretation, the court may not substitute its judgment for that of the ALJ.

3 Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1097. Here, the evidence demonstrates some improvement at 4 least at the L3-4 level of the spine. Therefore, the Court will not disturb the ALJ's 5 determination that the two MRIs show an improvement in Plaintiff's back 6 impairment.

7 Plaintiff challenges the ALJ's finding that her reports were not supported by 8 the objective medical evidence by citing to evidence throughout the record that 9 could support Plaintiff's reports of both physical and psychological symptoms.
10 ECF No. 15 at 13-15. But, the ALJ also supported his determination with multiple 11 citations to the record supporting his conclusion that Plaintiff's symptom reports 12 were not supported by medical evidence. Tr. 18-21. Again, if the evidence is 13 susceptible to more than one rational interpretation, the court may not substitute its 14 judgment for that of the ALJ. Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1097. Here, both Plaintiff and 15 the ALJ have provided evidence in support of the conflicting assertions.
16 Therefore, the Court will not disturb the ALJ's credibility determination.

17 The ALJ determined that Plaintiff's pain symptoms were unchanged since 18 2007; therefore, Plaintiff's ability to work from 2007 to 2011 undermined her 19 credibility regarding an inability to work from April 2011 to the date of the 20 hearing. Tr. 19. An impairment that existed for a long period of time and did not 21 prevent work in the past, should not prevent present or future work without 22 objective evidence of the impairment severity worsening. Gregory v. Bowen, 844
23 F.2d 664, 667 (9th Cir. 1988).

24 Plaintiff asserts that her symptoms were supported by a diagnosis of 25 fibromyalgia, which was erroneously found to not qualify as a medically 26 determinable impairment. ECF No. 15 at 9. As discussed below, the ALJ's 27 finding that fibromyalgia was not a medical determinable impairment is supported 28 by substantial evidence and is free of error. Therefore, Plaintiff's argument is 1 without merit.

2 Plaintiff also asserts that her symptoms were supported by the diagnosis of 3 piriformis syndrome, which was ignored by the ALJ. ECF No. 15 at 11-12. As 4 discussed below, the ALJ's decision to not address Plaintiff's alleged piriformis 5 syndrome was not an error. Therefore, Plaintiff's argument is without merit.

6 2. Substance Use

7 Plaintiff challenges the ALJ's reliance on Plaintiff's use of narcotics in 8 finding her less than fully credible. ECF No. 15 at 15.

9 An ALJ may properly consider evidence of a claimant's substance use in 10 assessing credibility. Thomas v. Barnhart, 278 F.3d 947, 959 (9th Cir. 2002) 11 (ALJ's finding that claimant was not a reliable historian regarding drug and 12 alcohol usage supports negative credibility determination); Verduzco v. Apfel, 188 13 F.3d 1087, 1090 (9th Cir. 1999) (conflicting or inconsistent testimony concerning 14 alcohol or drug use can contribute to an adverse credibility finding).

15 The ALJ found that Plaintiff made inconsistent reports regarding the use of 16 controlled substances. Tr. 19-20. Plaintiff argues that her use of narcotics should 17 not be considered in her credibility determination because the narcotic medications 18 were prescribed. ECF No. 15 at 15. But, the ALJ is allowed to consider ordinary 19 techniques of credibility evaluation, such has prior inconsistent statements.
20 Smolen, 80 F.3d at 1284. Therefore, the ALJ's reliance on Plaintiff's inconsistent 21 statements regarding narcotic use is an acceptable means of determining credibility 22 regardless of the fact that the narcotics were prescribed.

23 3. Activities of Daily Living

24 Plaintiff challenges the ALJ's finding that her activities cast doubt on her 25 alleged limitations. ECF No. 15 at 17-18.

26 A claimant's daily activities may support an adverse credibility finding if (1) 27 the claimant's activities contradict her other testimony, or (2) "the claimant is able 28 to spend a substantial part of [her] day engaged in pursuits involving performance

1 of physical functions that are transferable to a work setting.” Orn v. Astrue, 495
 2 F.3d 625, 639 (9th Cir. 2007) (citing Fair v. Bowen, 885 F.2d 597, 603 (9th Cir.
 3 1989)). “The ALJ must make ‘specific findings relating to [the daily] activities’ 4 and their transferability to conclude that a claimant’s daily activities warrant an 5 adverse credibility determination.” Id. (quoting Burch v. Barnhart, 400 F.3d 676, 6 681 (9th Cir. 2005)). A claimant need not be “utterly incapacitated” to be eligible 7 for benefits. Fair, 885 F.2d at 603.

8 Additionally, the ALJ found that Plaintiff’s “sewing, driving, exercise 9 activates, [sic] and other general daily activities are inconsistent with her hearing 10 testimony that her pain symptoms and concentration issues prevent her from 11 returning to work at a sedentary exertional capacity.” Tr. 22.

12 First, Plaintiff argues that several of the activities listed by the ALJ were 13 those that Plaintiff used to perform, and there is no evidence that she was able to or 14 actually performed these activities since the date of onset. ECF No. 15 at 17.
 15 Specifically, Plaintiff alleges that she used to enjoy riding a bicycle and gardening, 16 but there was no evidence in the record that she performed these activities during 17 the relevant time period. Id. But, Plaintiff reported to Dr. Schneider in 2012 that 18 she was “staying busy with a garden that she probably overdid.” Tr. 537.
 19 Therefore, Plaintiff’s assertion that there is no evidence she was performing the 20 gardening is without merit. As for the biking, Plaintiff asserts that her response 21 was to Dr. Gade’s inquiry on what she used to enjoy doing. ECF No. 15 at 17, 22 citing Tr. 276, 483. But, Dr. Gade’s record lists hobbies in the present tense. If the 23 evidence is susceptible to more than one rational interpretation, the court may not 24 substitute its judgment for that of the ALJ. Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1097. The Court 25 will not disturb the ALJ’s determination. Therefore, the ALJ did not error in his 26 finding that Plaintiff performed the activities of gardening and biking since the 27 alleged date of onset.

28 Second, Plaintiff argues that the activities described by the ALJ are not

1 transferable to a work setting. ECF No. 15 at 17-18. The ALJ did not determine 2 that Plaintiff's activities were transferable to a work setting, instead he found them 3 to be inconsistent with Plaintiff's hearing testimony that her pain and 4 concentration difficulties prevented her from returning to sedentary work. Tr. 22.
 5 But, the ALJ failed to specifically address how Plaintiff's performance of 6 household chores was inconsistent with specific statements made in her testimony.
 7 The Ninth Circuit has held that "general findings are insufficient; rather, the ALJ 8 must identify what testimony is not credible and what evidence undermines the 9 claimant's complaints." Reddick v. Chater, 157 F.3d 715, 722 (9th Cir. 1998).
 10 Therefore, the ALJ did error in his finding that the ability to perform household 11 chores was inconsistent with Plaintiff's reported pain and concentration testimony.
 12 But this error is harmless because the ALJ provided another legally sufficient 13 reason to reject Plaintiff's credibility. See Carmickle v. Comm'r, Soc. Sec. Admin., 14 533 F.3d 1155, 1163 (9th Cir. 2008) (upholding an adverse credibility finding 15 where the ALJ provided four reasons to discredit the claimant, two of which were 16 invalid); Batson, 359 F.3d at 1197 (affirming a credibility finding where one of 17 several reasons was unsupported by the record); Tommasetti v. Astrue, 533 F.3d 18 1035, 1038 (9th Cir. 2008) (an error is harmless when "it is clear from the record 19 that the . . . error was inconsequential to the ultimate nondisability determination").

20 The ALJ supported his unfavorable credibility determination with clear and 21 convincing reasons. Therefore, the Court will not disturb his findings.

22 B. Step Two Determination

23 Plaintiff argues that the ALJ erred by finding that her fibromyalgia was not a 24 medically determinable impairment at step two and by not considering Plaintiff's 25 alleged piriformis syndrome at step two. ECF No. 15 at 8, 11-12.

26 At step two, the ALJ considers the medical severity of a claimant's 27 impairments, "[i]f you do not have a severe medically determinable physical or 28 mental impairment that meets the duration requirement in § 404.1509, or a

1 combination of impairments that is severe and meets the duration requirement, we 2 will find that you are not disabled.” 20 C.F.R. § 404.1520(a)(4)(ii). Only an 3 acceptable medical source can provide evidence to establish a medically 4 determinable impairment. 20 C.F.R. § 404.1513(a). An impairment “must result 5 from anatomical, physiological, or psychological abnormalities which can be 6 shown by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques. A 7 physical or mental impairment must be established by medical evidence consisting 8 of signs, symptoms, and laboratory findings, not only by your statement of 9 symptoms.” 20 C.F.R. § 404.1508.

10 1. Fibromyalgia

11 Social Security Ruling 12-2p² designates two separate sets of diagnostic 12 criteria that can establish fibromyalgia as a medically determinable impairment.
13 The first set of criteria is the 1990 American College of Rheumatology Criteria for 14 the Classification of Fibromyalgia and requires (1) a history of widespread pain, 15 (2) at least eleven out of eighteen positive tender points on physical examination, 16 and (3) evidence that other disorders that could cause the symptoms or signs were 17 excluded. S.S.R. 12-2p. The second set of criteria is the 2010 American College 18 of Rheumatology Preliminary Diagnostic Criteria and requires (1) a history of 19 widespread pain, (2) repeated manifestations of six or more fibromyalgia 20 symptoms, signs, or co-occurring conditions, and (3) evidence that other disorders

22 ²Although they do not carry the force of law, Social Security Rulings are 23 “binding on all components of the Social Security Administration.” 20 C.F.R. §§ 24 402.35(b)(1) and (2). Such rulings “reflect the official interpretation of the [Social 25 Security Administration] and are entitled to some deference as long as they are 26 consistent with the Social Security Act and regulations.” Molina v. Astrue, 674 27 F.3d 1104, 1113 n.5 (9th Cir. 2012) (citations and internal quotation marks 28 omitted).

1 that could cause these reported manifestations of symptoms, signs, or co-occurring 2 conditions were excluded. Id.

3 The ALJ found that Plaintiff's alleged fibromyalgia was not a medically 4 determinable impairment. Tr. 14. He determined that while Plaintiff had reported 5 a diagnosis of fibromyalgia since 2007, the record lacked any tender point testing 6 and her medical records failed to rule out other disorders. Id. Therefore, the ALJ 7 concluded that Plaintiff's reports of fibromyalgia did not meet either criteria set 8 forth in S.S.R. 12-2p. Id.

9 Plaintiff alleges that the record contains multiple diagnoses of fibromyalgia 10 by treating providers, including Dr. Vye, Dr. Wernick, and Dr. Quave. ECF No.
11 15 at 9. The multiple diagnoses cited by Plaintiff are either in the historical 12 diagnostic section of the record (Tr. 388, 390, 392, 393, 395, 397, 400, 410, 412, 13 414, 415, 419, 422), were diagnoses made after Plaintiff reported a history of 14 fibromyalgia and reported chronic pain (Tr. 399, 401, 403, 404, 417, 421, 423, 15 425, 530, 532), or were diagnoses made with no evidence that the provider 16 performed testing to establish the criteria set forth in 12-2p (Tr. 535, 536, 540, 17 544).

18 Likewise, Plaintiff argues that the record contains multiple tender point tests.
19 ECF No. 15 at 9-10. Social Security Ruling 12-2p is very specific regarding the 20 positive tender points. There must be eleven positive tender points out of the 21 eighteen specific tender point sites, the positive tender points must be found 22 bilaterally and both above and below the waist, and the physician should perform 23 digital palpation with an approximate force of nine pounds. S.S.R. 12-2p. The 24 July 22, 2010, and September 16, 2010, Valley Medical Clinic reports state that 25 Plaintiff “[c]ontinues to have tender points and poor motion,” but there were no 26 indications to the number of positive tender points, the location of the tender 27 points, or the method used by the physician. Tr. 307, 311. Therefore, these tests 28 do not meet the criteria set forth in S.S.R. 12-2p. Plaintiff also points to several 1 locations in the record noting tenderness upon palpation, but none of them meet the 2 specific criteria of S.S.R. 12-2p. ECF No. 15 at 10. In fact, several of the 3 locations of Plaintiff's tenderness cited in briefing do not correlate to any of the 4 eighteen possible tender point sites as illustrated in the diagram contained in S.S.R.

5 12-2p. Therefore, the ALJ's determination that Plaintiff's alleged fibromyalgia is 6 not a medical determinable impairment is supported by substantial evidence and 7 free of error.

8 2. Piriformis Syndrome

9 Plaintiff alleges that the ALJ erred when he failed to discuss her alleged 10 piriformis syndrome. ECF No. 15 at 11-12. But, piriformis syndrome is not 11 diagnosed in the record. On March 24, 2011, Plaintiff's physical therapist, 12 Michelle Beardemphl, stated that her symptoms appeared to be the result of an 13 overstretched piriformis, among other impairments. Tr. 338. On May 13, 2011, 14 Mary L. Murphy, PA-C, dictated that Plaintiff "has been told she has piriformis 15 syndrome," and listed "Possible left piriformis syndrome" under the diagnosis 16 section of the report. Tr. 472. The report was then signed by Ms. Murphy and 17 Bret Quave, M.D. Id. Here, there is no affirmative diagnosis of piriformis 18 syndrome as a medically determinable impairment made by an acceptable medical 19 source. Therefore, the ALJ did not error in not addressing piriformis syndrome in 20 his decision.

21 C. Evaluation of Medical Evidence

22 Plaintiff argues the ALJ failed to properly consider and weigh the medical 23 opinion expressed by Ronald Vincent, M.D., Paul Schneider, Ph.D., Michelle 24 Beardemphl, MPT, and Robert Kelley, D.C. ECF No. 15 at 19-27.

25 When it comes to opinion evidence, there is a distinction between acceptable 26 medical sources and other sources. See S.S.R. 06-03p. "Accepted medical 27 sources" include licensed physicians, licensed psychologists, licensed optometrists, 28 licensed podiatrists, and qualified speech-language pathologists. 20 C.F.R. §

1 404.1513(a). “Other sources” include nurse practitioners, physicians’ assistants, 2 therapists, teachers, social workers, spouses and other non-medical sources. 20 3 C.F.R. § 404.1513(d).

4 1. Acceptable Medical Sources

5 Dr. Vincent is a licensed physician and Dr. Schneider is a licensed 6 psychologist. Therefore, they qualify as an acceptable medical source. 20 C.F.R.
 7 § 404.1513(a).

8 In weighing medical source opinions, the ALJ should distinguish between 9 three different types of physicians: (1) treating physicians, who actually treat the 10 claimant; (2) examining physicians, who examine but do not treat the claimant; 11 and, (3) nonexamining physicians who neither treat nor examine the claimant.
 12 Lester, 81 F.3d at 830. The ALJ should give more weight to the opinion of a 13 treating physician than to the opinion of an examining physician. Orn, 495 F.3d at 14 631. The ALJ should give more weight to the opinion of an examining physician 15 than to the opinion of a nonexamining physician. Id.

16 When a physician’s opinion is not contradicted, the ALJ may reject the 17 opinion only for “clear and convincing” reasons. Baxter v. Sullivan, 923 F.2d 18 1391, 1396 (9th Cir. 1991). When a physician’s opinion is contradicted, the ALJ is 19 only required to provide “specific and legitimate reasons” for rejecting the opinion 20 of the first physician. Murray v. Heckler, 722 F.2d 499, 502 (9th Cir. 1983).
 21 Likewise, when an examining physician’s opinion is not contradicted by another 22 physician, the ALJ may reject the opinion only for “clear and convincing” reasons.
 23 Lester, 81 F.2d at 830. When an examining physician’s opinion is contradicted by 24 another physician, the ALJ is only required to provide “specific and legitimate 25 reasons” for rejecting the opinion of the examining physician. Id. at 830-831.

26 a. Ronald Vincent, M.D.

27 On September 6, 2011, Dr. Vincent reviewed Plaintiff’s records and 28 completed an evaluation. Tr. 371-380. Dr. Vincent concluded that Plaintiff’s

1 “primary problem is that of a disability conviction.” Tr. 379. He opined that she 2 was capable of working, “though it would be those that are non-industrial 3 conditions.” Id. When asked about necessary treatment, Dr. Vincent stated, “[a]ny 4 treatment provided for her at this time would be for her disability conviction which 5 is not related to the injury of record, but a product of her personality and her own 6 response to pain.” Tr. 380. The ALJ gave Dr. Vincent’s opinion “significant 7 weight” because it was “consistent with the claimant’s work history and her lack of 8 notable changes in her physical state compared to before her alleged onset date.”
 9 Tr. 22.

10 Plaintiff asserts that Dr. Vincent’s opinion should not be given significant 11 weight because the opinion was gathered as part of a Labor and Industry claim.
 12 ECF No. 15 at 23. The Ninth Circuit has held that “the purpose for which a 13 medical reports are obtained does not provide a legitimate basis for rejecting 14 them.” Lester, 81 F.3d at 830; Batson, 359 F.3d at 1196, n.5. Plaintiff also asserts 15 that Dr. Vincent did not review any medical records. ECF No. 15 at 23. However, 16 Dr. Vincent’s evaluation shows that he reviewed records from 2007 up to the date 17 of the evaluation and some of the records he reviewed while Plaintiff was present.
 18 Tr. 371-375. Plaintiff alludes to the argument that Dr. Vincent was only an 19 examining physician and Plaintiff’s treating providers should have been given 20 greater weight. ECF No. 15 at 23. But in her briefing Plaintiff only argues two of 21 her treating providers should be given greater weight, Ms. Beardemphl and Dr.
 22 Kelley, and the ALJ provided legally sufficient reasons for rejecting their opinions.
 23 See infra.

24 Therefore, the ALJ did not error in giving significant weight to the opinion 25 of Dr. Vincent.

26 b. Paul Schneider, Ph.D.

27 On May 21, 2012, Dr. Schneider completed a psychological evaluation. Tr.
 28 546-551. He diagnosed Plaintiff with a pain disorder associated with both 1 psychological factors and general medical condition, alcohol dependence in 2 substantial full sustained remission, psychological factors affecting general 3 medical condition, adjustment disorder with mixed anxiety and depressed mood, 4 and sleep disorder, insomnia, related to pain and perhaps schedule and anxiety. Tr.

5 549. Dr. Schneider provided the following conclusions:

6 [A]t sometime in the future she might want to follow up with the 7 Division of Vocational Rehabilitation to try to get back into the work 8 force to some degree. Her work has been very important to her, and I 9 think it is going to be helpful if we can get her at least something somewhere down the road.

10 From a Social Security disability issue, it is my impression that Diana 11 is not capable of gainful full-time employment in any capacity. Even 12 though she can have good days and be functional here and there for a 13 little bit, the highly erratic nature of her symptoms, the severe and 14 persistent chronic pain, and the huge flare-ups that make her pretty 15 much dysfunctional for up to a month at a time really interfere with anything that I can think of in that employment sector.

16 Tr. 550.

17 The ALJ gave “minimal weight to this somewhat inconsistent opinion,” 18 because Dr. Schneider based his opinion on Plaintiff’s self-reported symptoms and 19 limitations and his evaluation findings were inconsistent with his opinion. Tr. 23.

20 A doctor’s opinion may be discounted if it relies on a claimant’s unreliable 21 self-report. Bayliss v. Barnhart, 427 F.3d 1211, 1217 (9th Cir. 2005); Tommasetti, 22 533 F.3d at 1041. But the doctor must provide the basis for his conclusion that the 23 opinion was based on a claimant’s self-reports. Ghanim v. Colvin, 763 F.3d 1154, 24 1162 (9th Cir. 2014).

25 Here, the ALJ stated that Dr. Schneider’s evaluation noted Plaintiff 26 displayed average intelligence, fair insight, and no evidence of thought disorder, 27 which was inconsistent with his conclusion of cognitive disorders. Tr. 24. When a 28 medical source opinion mirrors a claimant’s subjective reports yet the evaluation

1 shows normal objective findings, a reasonable conclusion is that the provider gave 2 more credence to the subjective statements than the objective findings. Even if the 3 ALJ did not recite “I find Dr. Schneider’s opinion to be based on Plaintiff’s self-4 reports because . . .” the Court is not deprived of its faculties for drawing 5 inferences from the ALJ’s opinion. See Magallanes v. Bowen, 881 F.2d 747, 755
 6 (9th Cir. 1989). Furthermore, internal inconsistencies in the evaluating physician’s 7 report is, in itself, a legally sufficient reason to reject a physician’s opinion.
 8 Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216. Therefore, the ALJ did not error in rejecting Dr.
 9 Schneider’s opinion.

10 2. Other Sources

11 Ms. Beardemphl is a physical therapist. Tr. 329; ECF No. 15 at 20. Dr.
 12 Kelley is a chiropractor. Tr. 508; ECF No. 15 at 23. Therefore, they are 13 considered “other sources.” 20 C.F.R. § 404.1513(d).

14 While the ALJ is required to consider observations by “other sources” 15 regarding how an impairment affects a claimant’s ability to work, Id., the ALJ can 16 disregard opinion evidence from an “other source,” by setting forth reasons “that 17 are germane to each witness.” Nguyen v. Chater, 100 F.3d 1462, 1467 (9th Cir.
 18 1996).

19 a. Michelle Beardemphl, MPT

20 Plaintiff asserts that Ms. Beardemphl opined that Plaintiff was unable to sit 21 and the ALJ erred by not addressing this opinion in his decision. ECF No. 15 at 22 20-22. But, Ms. Beardemphl did not offer an opinion as to Plaintiff’s functional 23 abilities. At Plaintiff’s first appointment with Ms. Beardemphl on March 24, 2011, 24 Plaintiff reported the following:

25 She is employed as a medical transcriptionist and states she does have 26 difficulty sitting or maintaining any position for long period of time 27 secondary to her pain. She reports left sided low back, buttock, and 28 lateral hip pain that is constant and reports there is occasional numbness and tingling radiating down the left lower extremity to the toes. She

1 reports her pain is aggravated with sitting, standing, and lying down 2 and reports there is really no position where she feels comfortable.

3 Tr. 338-339. Then following Plaintiff's final appointment on August 8, 2011, Ms.
4 Beardemphl stated the following:

5 Diana has been quite faithful with her exercises at home and we have 6 seen good improvements in core strength and as I said before, improved 7 function however she works as a medical transcriptionist and has been 8 unable to work secondary to her limitation with sitting and it does seem 9 that her progress has plateaued over the last several weeks.

10 Tr. 329-330. Plaintiff asserts that this August 8, 2011, statement constitutes an 11 opinion by Ms. Beardemphl that Plaintiff is unable to perform sedentary work.
12 ECF No. 15 at 20-21. But it is simply a reproduction of Plaintiff's March 24, 13 2011, statements and a summary of Plaintiff's progress.

14 The Court acknowledges that the ALJ is required to discuss Ms.
15 Beardemphl's observations regarding Plaintiff's symptoms under Nguyen. The 16 ALJ met this requirement when he considered the results of Plaintiff's straight leg 17 raising tests performed by Ms. Beardemphl. Tr. 18.

18 Therefore, the ALJ did not error when he did not discuss Ms. Beardemphl's 19 August 8, 2011, statement because it did not qualify as opinion evidence.

20 b. Robert Kelley, D.C.

21 Plaintiff challenges the weight given to the opinion of her chiropractor, Dr.
22 Kelley. ECF No. 15 at 23-24.

23 On October 14, 2011, Dr. Kelley wrote a letter stating that Plaintiff had been 24 working on "return to work" goals," but that Plaintiff had been unable to complete 25 a two-week "limited work" trial due to symptom exacerbation. Tr. 508. Dr.
26 Kelley continued, "[a]s it stands, she has progressed to within the intermediate 27 phase of needing to be strengthened by the activities of work, yet not fully capable 28 of performing all work activities without risking the potential of exacerbating her

1 condition.” Id.

2 The ALJ gave “minimal weight to this confusing statement,” because it did 3 not clearly define Plaintiff’s functional limitations, it did not preclude the prospect 4 of Plaintiff being able to maintain full time work, and it did not explain how 5 Plaintiff’s intermittent symptoms compromised her residual functional capacity.
6 Tr. 23. All of these reasons are germane to Dr. Kelley and his opinion. Therefore, 7 the ALJ provided legally sufficient reasons for rejecting Dr. Kelley’s opinion.

8 In conclusion, the ALJ provided legally sufficient reasons for the weight he 9 gave to the opinions of Plaintiff’s acceptable medical sources and Plaintiff’s the 10 other sources.

11 D. Past Relevant Work

12 Plaintiff challenges the ALJ’s finding that Plaintiff’s past relevant work 13 included the occupation of medical receptionist. ECF No. 15 at 5-7.

14 Past relevant work is defined as “work that you have done in the past 15 15 years, that was substantial gainful activity, and that lasted long enough for you to 16 learn to do it.” 20 C.F.R. § 404.1560(b)(1). “We do not usually consider that 17 work you did 15 years or more before the time we are deciding whether you are 18 disabled (or when the disability insured status requirement was last met, if earlier) 19 applies.” 20 C.F.R. § 404.1565(a). The ALJ’s decision was made on October 23, 20 2013. Tr. 11-26. Therefore, under 20 C.F.R. § 404.1565(a), any work performed 21 prior to October 23, 1998, should not be considered past relevant work.

22 On a Disability Report – Adult dated December 6, 2011, Plaintiff, through 23 her attorney, alleged her job as a medical receptionist ended in 1999. Tr. 192, 194.
24 In a Work History Report, Plaintiff did not include any job as a medical 25 receptionist. Tr. 209-211. She only discussed her jobs as a medical 26 transcriptionist from 2001 to April 2011. Id. A review of Plaintiff’s Certified 27 Earnings Record revealed that Plaintiff worked at Medical Associates of Yakima 28 from 1996 to 1998 and Yakima Neighborhood Health Services from 1998 to 2001.

1 Tr. 165-166. Therefore, Plaintiff worked in two locations in 1998: Yakima 2 Neighborhood Health Services and Medical Associates of Yakima. Id. At the 3 hearing, Plaintiff testified that she had only worked as a medical transcriptionist 4 since 1998. Tr. 43.

At the hearing, the ALJ asked that vocational expert if he had the opportunity to review the vocational portion of Plaintiff's file to familiarize himself with her past relevant work, and the vocational expert responded in the affirmative. Tr. 60. The vocational expert then classified Plaintiff's past relevant work as medical receptionist as set forth in exhibit 4E³ from 1987 to 1999 and medical transcription from 1999 to 2011. Id.

11 Plaintiff asserts that the Certified Earnings Report and Plaintiff's testimony 12 shows that the medical receptionist job ended sometime in 1998. She argues that 13 the earnings from Medical Associates of Yakima ending in 1998 and the earnings 14 from Yakima Neighborhood Health Services beginning in 1998 supports this 15 assertion. ECF No. 15 at 5-6. Therefore, her past work as a medical receptionist 16 would not be considered past relevant work. Id.

17 Plaintiff's Certified Earnings Record states only employers and earnings and 18 does not provide any information as to Plaintiff's job duties. The only information 19 in the record about what jobs were performed at varying places of employment is 20 that provided by Plaintiff through her Disability Report- Adult form, her Work 21 History Report form, and her testimony. Considering the Disability Report-Adult 22 form states the work as a medical receptionist ended 1999, the Work History 23 Report form lacks any mention of a medical receptionist job, and Plaintiff's 24 testimony put the medical receptionist job ending prior in 1998, the record is 25 ambiguous. The ALJ is responsible for resolving ambiguities and the Court will

²⁷ Exhibit 4E is The Disability Report – Adult form completed by Plaintiff's ²⁸ attorney. Tr. 191-204.

1 uphold the ALJ's decision where the evidence is susceptible to more than one 2 rational interpretation. Andrews, 53 F.3d at 1039; Tackett, 180 F.3d at 1097.
3 Because the record supports both conclusions, the Court will uphold the ALJ's 4 determination. The ALJ did not error in his past relevant work determination.

5 E. Transferable Skills

6 Plaintiff challenges the ALJ's determination of transferable skills in this 7 case. ECF No. 15 at 6-7.

8 The Ninth Circuit has held that an ALJ commits reversible error by 9 determining that a plaintiff has acquired transferable work skills from past 10 employers without expressly setting out the acquired skills. Bray, 554 F.3d at 11 1223-1225. Specifically, the court reasoned that “[w]hen a finding is made that a 12 claimant has transferable skills, the acquired work skills must be identified, and 13 specific occupations to which the acquired work skills are transferable must be 14 cited in the . . . ALJ’s decision It is important that these findings be made at 15 all levels of adjudication to clearly establish the basis for the determination or 16 decision for the claimant and for a reviewing body including a Federal district 17 court.” Id. at 1223 (quoting S.S.R. 82-41). The Bray court also explained that, 18 even where the ALJ relies on vocational expert testimony in determining that a 19 claimant has transferable skills from past work, the ALJ is still required to 20 expressly identify in the decision what work skills are transferable and to what 21 specific occupations those acquired skills apply. See id. at 1225.

22 Here, the ALJ found that plaintiff’s work as a medical transcriptionist was 23 semi-skilled and contained “all the necessary skills for the claimant to transfer to 24 work as a data entry clerk.” Tr. 25. The ALJ did not identify Plaintiff’s work 25 skills or make any findings supporting the transferability of Plaintiff’s skills. As 26 such, the ALJ’s determination regarding Plaintiff’s transferability of skills is in 27 error, but the error is harmless in light of the valid step four determination.

28 Tommasetti, 533 F.3d at 1038 (an error is harmless when “it is clear from the

1 record that the . . . error was inconsequential to the ultimate nondisability 2 determination").

3 Plaintiff asserts that she does not maintain the functional ability to perform 4 semi-skilled work, therefore the skills acquired as a medical transcriptionist should 5 not transfer. ECF No. 15 at 6-7. Essentially, Plaintiff is challenging the residual 6 functional capacity assessment in this case. But, the ALJ's determinations 7 regarding credibility and the weight granted to medical source opinions has been 8 deemed proper, therefore, the residual functional capacity assessment is without 9 error and Plaintiff's argument is without merit.

10 CONCLUSION

11 Having reviewed the record and the ALJ's findings, the Court finds the 12 ALJ's decision is supported by substantial evidence and free of harmful legal error.
 13 Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED:

14 1. Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 18, is 15 GRANTED.

16 2. Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 15, is DENIED.

17 The District Court Executive is directed to file this Order and provide a copy 18 to counsel for Plaintiff and Defendant. Judgment shall be entered for Defendant 19 and the file shall be CLOSED.
